Georgia's "Queen of Damage Prevention" Claudette Campbell Announces Retirement

STAFF REPORT

Claudette Campbell, CEO of Georgia 811, has announced her retirement date of April 1, 2019. "Campbell has accomplished many things in Georgia and nationally, in addition to mentoring and inspiring those around her," said Meghan Wade, President of Georgia 811.

On April 1, 1980, Campbell was named Executive Director of Utilities Protection Center, Inc. (UPC). She had formerly been with Southern Bell (1973 - 1980) rising from a clerical position to a supervisor on the Outside Plant Maintenance Methods staff before becoming manager of an in-house One Call system. This in-house One Call processed 7,276 locate requests in 1974. It was this in-house system that became the stand-alone nonprofit UPC.

During this time, Georgia's dig law only mandated that gas facilities mark their lines and there was no mandatory membership. Campbell took the show on the road, visiting public and private utility companies to encourage them to voluntarily join UPC and begin the creation of a statewide damage prevention program.

In 1986, Campbell was elected as the Chair of the American Public Works Association's (APWA) One Call Systems International (OCSI) and she served on the Advisory Committee of Underground Focus Magazine. The following year, she was elected to APWA's national Utility Location and Coordination Council and was eventually named Chair in 1990. In 1991, she was the elected President of the Georgia Chapter of APWA and became the first female to hold this title.

During the 1990s, Campbell led the UPC to become the first One Call Center to allow excavators to create locate requests online. Today, more than 60% of locate requests are created in this manner.

In 1996, Campbell was selected to serve on the Damage Prevention Quality Action Team as a result of the Federal Department of Transportation's (DOT) creation of a national underground utility damage prevention awareness campaign. As this campaign was finalized, Campbell became the Co-Chair of the Dig Safety Committee which created the National Dig Safety Campaign. She took a huge role in the implementation of this campaign traveling across the U.S. and Canada and presenting to professional associations. This work led to the creation of the Best Practices Committee created by the DOT. In 2000, the Common Ground Alliance (CGA) was formed and Campbell was named as Co-Chair of the CGA Education Committee.

Campbell has reached many milestones and received many awards over her career, including the Service Awards from the Atlanta and Georgia Chapters of APWA in 1986. She was recognized by the U.S. DOT in 1992 and 1999 for her contributions to the Technical Pipeline Safety Standards Committee and for keeping "Georgia Safe and Connected." She was instrumental in the creation and implementation of the International Utility Locate Rodeo in 2002. In 2004, Campbell received the APWA Georgia Chapter's William J. Humma Award for Service. She is the fifth recipient of this award since its creation in 1986. Campbell also received the CGA Hall of Fame award in 2005 along with the Lifetime Achievement Award for Service to the Cause of Damage Prevention from the National Utility Contractors Association (NUCA). In 2007, Campbell and her team made sure UPC was 811 compliant and the organization began doing business as Georgia 811 in 2010.

"Claudette has been a trailblazer, problem solver, role model and innovator," added Wade.

PARTNERSHIPS FOR THE FUTURE THROUGH INDUSTRY ACHIEVEMENT GUCA Lifetime Industry Achievement Award

In the scope of our professional careers we try to be productive and hope to be appreciated. We develop a strong work ethic, we create and we achieve. The goal is to be professional and optimize our chosen careers to its fullest potential. On this journey, some people become game changers and groundbreakers for their profession. In this light, GUCA is honoring the 1st GUCA Lifetime Achievement Award to an original and an industry groundbreaker, Georgia 811 CEO Claudette Campbell.

Claudette was raised in Tupelo, Mississippi and continued her education by attending Bauder College in Atlanta, Georgia. Since joining Georgia 811, Claudette has held the positions of Executive Director and most recently President/C.E.O. The origins of the Georgia Call Center date back to a tragic accident in May 1968 involving a natural gas explosion that took the lives of seven children and two adults at a daycare facility in Hapeville, Georgia. In 1974 Atlanta Gas Light, Georgia Power, and BellSouth formed Utilities Protection Center, Inc. Georgia was among the first ten states in the nation to form a statewide one-call system. The "Call Before You Dig" law was enacted on July 1, 1986. The Center became known as Georgia 811 in 2010 following the FCC mandate that 811 become the national "Call Before You Dig" number.

Working with like-minded individuals, Georgia 811 is a 75 employee company specializing in training, education and the processing of locate requests to keep Georgia safe and connected. This is done in conjunction with their liaison staff, call center, IT, customer connections and accounting functions, all working together to make for a successful business.

Claudette states that the first key to a successful business is to follow her personal motto, "Always surround yourself with people smarter than yourself." She goes on to say, "You can't run a successful business unless you care about your employees and your clients and you always need to treat them fairly and with deep respect. Treat others the way you wish to be treated. Also, you need to keep your eye on the business of the business to ensure that operations run smoothly and in full compliance with all governing laws and regulations."

Claudette has faced many of the typical day to day challenges that the leader of an organization is presented with and she has gone on to lead the company through these challenges. As a prime example, when the Olympics came to Atlanta in 1996, in order to ensure that locate requests were processed in the event that traffic would prohibit employees from getting to work, Claudette inaugurated the telecommuter program. It started with just 4 employees and today every employee has the opportunity to work from home. Once the telecommuting program took root, the next challenge was what to do with the open office space. Georgia 811 now offers two training/meeting spaces to stakeholders. This in turn has put the company in the Platinum category of the Georgia Clean Air Campaign and is looked upon as one of the top benefits the company has to offer.

Claudette says that when the company was first started they had to persuade people to call before digging. Through organizational efforts and educating the public about the benefits of calling first and the need to dig safely, millions of locate requests are processed annually and underground utility damages are being prevented. Currently, the company processes approximately 1.2 million locate requests transmitting some 15.8 million notices to our member utilities.

Claudette has been an industrial trailblazer. She was a member of the original One Call Systems International (OCSI) and then became chair of the Georgia Utilities Coordinating Council (GUCC). She was also a national board member of the American Public Works Association (APWA). She joined this association early in her career to learn more about roads and street construction as well as water and sewer systems. After serving as the OCSI chair, Claudette was appointed by Elizabeth Dole and Samuel Skinner to serve as a public member of the Technical Pipeline Safety Standards Committee which led to her appointment to the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) task force. One of her tasks on this task force was to come up with a national slogan to encourage safe digging, which ultimately became "Dig Safely". After serving in various capacities, that committee evolved to become the Common Ground Alliance (CGA). At the same time, Claudette formed the Southeastern One Call System (SOCS) in the early 1990s and that served as the model for CGA. On a more local level, she was instrumental in GUCC's transformation into a statewide organization of over 300 members and over 40 local committees across the state. Additionally, she led the formation of the International Locate Rodeo which recognizes the work and dedication of the locating community.

Claudette also has been a member of GUCA since 1980. GUCA was the first organization that Claudette joined when she was appointed to her position as Executive Director at Georgia 811. Claudette has been an active member of GUCA since joining the organization. She has served on numerous committees, functions, and meetings, always bringing her knowledge and expertise, along with a willingness to learn to help foster solutions to outstanding issues. "GUCA has been instrumental in making an opportunity for me to learn about the utility construction industry. The organization and its leadership has been a tremendous asset to all our stakeholders in the safe digging industry for its ability to recognize what their members need and to respond to those needs with quality education on the latest laws and regulations."

GUCA Executive Director Vikki Consiglio states, "Claudette was my mentor when I was hired as Executive Director of GUCA. I knew Claudette through another association and I called her immediately to help me through the One Call Process! Claudette and I have worked on Georgia's One Call Law and she has always been a go to person when excavators need help. I call her first a professional, a leader, a mentor and a visionary. I hope I made her as proud of me as I am of her."

Georgia Power recommends dividing your yard into three specific planting zones - the Tall Zone (trees 60 feet or higher), the Medium Zone (trees no taller than 40 feet), and the Low Zone (trees and shrubs no taller than 25 feet). Trees and shrubs in the Low Zone may be planted 15 feet from electric utility wires.

In addition to helping customers select the right trees to plant, Georgia Power maintains 160,000 line acres and 24,000 miles of transmission and distribution lines under guidelines set by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC). These maintenance activities are an essential piece of the company's commitment to ensuring reliable service for 2.5 million customers in every corner of the state.

Georgia Power also reminds customers of the importance of calling 811 before they dig. The company works every day with Georgia 811 to ensure that projects are safe and comply with the "Georgia Dig Law." The law requires that workers contact Georgia 811 before digging to have all underground utility lines (such as power, communications, gas and water lines) clearly marked. Georgia residents can call the free service at 8-1-1 or (800)-282-7411, or submit an electronic request at www.Georgia811.com.

A Georgia 811 employee is shown anchoring the hot air balloon as a process called "cold inflation" was used to expand the 75-foot-tall sail into the sky Saturday at the Hoschton Soccer Field. The hot air balloon was $72,000.

Hoschton raises awareness of Georgia 811 with first hot air balloon event

By Wesleigh Sagon

wes@mainstreetnews.com

The City of Hoschton hosted its first hot air balloon event with Georgia 811 Utilities Protection Center, Inc. to raise public awareness of the corporation and to spread the message to "Know what's below, Call before you dig."

Saturday, as the crowd gathered, Georgia 811 employees laid the basket over, connected the balloon and spread out all of its fabric across the Hoschton Soccer Field so that it laid horizontal. The team tied off the balloon and then used an inflation fan to blow cold air into the mouth of the balloon until it expanded its 75-foot-tall sail into the evening sky.

"This process is called a cold inflation," stated Megan Estes, corporate communications manager of Georgia 811.

The basket weighs 450 pounds when it is full of riders and the balloon weighs 260 pounds.

"The volume of air inside of the balloon is equal to about 77,000 inflated soccer balls as there is about a cubic foot of air in each," leaders stated.

Due to inclement conditions, the team was not able to offer tethered rides to its visitors.

"We planned to have a drawing and pull a name every 10 minutes for new riders," said Jennifer Kidd Harrison, event coordinator for the City of Hoschton.

"For us to even be able to stand the balloon up to show it off, there has to be steady winds of 10 miles per hour and to give tethered rides, wind should be around five or six mph. As it is sprinkling, and we have gusts of wind up to 20 mph we are not able to offer tethered rides for safety concerns," stated Georgia 811 employees.

Since February, through an initiative with Common Ground Alliance, Georgia 811 has been traveling the road full time with its hot air balloon. The team is from Austin, Texas, and this event was the 30th stop they have made around the country.

Georgia 811 is a nonprofit corporation dedicated to preventing damage to Georgia's underground utilities and promoting public safety.

"Each state has its own 811 call center to help you get digging," stated leaders. "We function as a communication system, connecting our member utility companies with professional excavators and homeowners who are planning mechanized digging activity such as excavation, tunneling, grading, boring and demolition."

Georgia law mandates that, before beginning any mechanized digging or excavation work, you must contact Georgia 811 by calling 811 or 1-800-282-7411 at least 48 hours but no more than 10 working days in advance to have utility lines marked.

"Calling Georgia 811 is one of the best ways to protect the public from harm, prevent utility services interruptions and avoid costly damage," leaders state.

Although it is not required by Georgia law to notify the Georgia 811 if a smaller, non-mechanized digging project is planned, the organization encourages residents to do so to ensure personal safety and the safety of those around them.

Leaders state that it is a good idea to call about any type of outdoor digging project. These projects can include installing a fence or mailbox, anchoring supports for decks and swings sets, planting trees or landscaping, removing tree roots or installing a retainer wall.

During the public awareness event visitors also enjoyed a concert featuring Halle Nolan, bounce houses, food vendors, face painting, games and more.

From Cherokee FD: Cherokee County Fire & Emergency Services was recognized yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the Utility Coordinating Council (UCC) that was held at Fields Landing Park.

Lori Jones, who works with Cherokee County Engineering and is Chairman of the local GUCC, said "We wanted to thank and recognize all who participated in the "Safe Digging Proclamations" this year by inviting them to our luncheon meeting. The ones who participated were the Cherokee County Board of Commissioners, City of Holly Springs, City of Ball Ground, City of Woodstock, City of Waleska and last but not least, the first fire department in the state to make a proclamation, Cherokee County Fire & Emergency Services! These "Safe Digging" Proclamations this year has resulted in new work relationships and strengthened Cherokee County as a whole." GA811, which is a nonprofit corporation dedicated to preventing damage to Georgia's underground utilities and promoting public safety, rewards the utility group for spreading the "Safe Digging" message via proclamations. "We received an unprecedented total of six proclamations for Cherokee County, the most in the state this year. Because of this, the people at GA811 provided the lunch for our members," added Jones.

After lunch, Meghan Wade, President of GA811, came forward to speak to the group about GA811. Local Utility Coordinating Committees are formed usually by the county (in some cases multi-counties) and are created to enhance communication between the utility companies in the area and also the excavation community. At the local meetings, each company is provided an opportunity to bring us issues they need resolved, projects and subdivisions they may be working on/in and any additional information they feel will be useful to the other utility companies, excavators and locators present. The local committee provides a venue to share local issues and vital information. Additionally these meetings provide for an opportunity to have a program ranging from onsite speakers, videos and PowerPoint. Remember, before you dig, call 811.

Natural gas is a safe and efficient form of energy. In its natural state, natural gas has no smell and is not visible to the naked eye. A chemical called mercaptin is added to natural gas to make customers aware if there is a leak. Most accidents occur because of lack of knowledge that leads to unsafe equipment or appliance use, not because natural gas itself is unsafe. Some of the potential hazards of an unintended release of natural gas include fire, explosion, property damage and asphyxiation.

Dalton Utilities protects the natural gas system through active participation in the One Call System or Dig Safety Program, strategically placed pipeline markers and signage, pipeline integrity management program, Emergency Response Plan, patrolling of the pipeline, and routine inspections of the pipeline.

Please be aware that natural gas lines may be located on or near your property. Always call 8-1-1 before you dig!

Leak Recognition and Response

Natural gas in the natural state does not have an odor. Its distinct odor is added so that gas leaks can be detected more easily. Sufficient odor is added so that people with a normal sense of smell may detect gas in the air concentrations where gas is less than 1%. Other ways to detect gas leaks include:

- Sight, sound and feel • Vegetation discoloration or decay • Instruments

If you smell gas odor rising intensely, or it seems to be everywhere:

OUTDOORS: Leave the area and call Austell Gas System IMMEDIATELY at 770-948-1841, option "1".

INDOORS: If you smell gas or detect a gas leak: Investigate. If possible "follow your nose" to the source. It may only be a pilot that is out or a burner valve partially turned on...something easily and safely corrected. If the source of the gas cannot be located or if the odor persists:

- Leave the premises IMMEDIATELY...
- DO NOT create any source of possible ignition by lighting of lighters or matches, or turning on or off any switches, or any other device/appliances including phones or cell phones that may create a potential source of ignition.
- DO NOT re-enter the premise/area until a leak investigation has been conducted; only Emergency Personnel should enter the premises/area.
- Call Austell Gas System from a safe location at (770) 948-1841, option "1".
- Remember to call 911 if conditions warrant!

Damage Prevention / One Call

The Georgia Dig Law requires both professional excavators and homeowners to have utility lines marked before performing any mechanized digging, demolition, or working within 10 feet of overhead power lines. Call 811 even if you plan to manually dig. By knowing where underground utility lines are buried before digging will help protect you from injury and/or expense.

Calling the Utilities Protection Center before digging is a service free of charge. Call at least 48 hours, but no more than 10 working days, excluding weekends and legal holidays, before starting your digging project. Calling 811 starts the process to get your underground utility lines marked.

The single greatest cause of accidents regarding natural gas pipelines is digging by third party excavators. Third Party refers to those other than the pipeline operator. Please report any suspected signs of damage to our pipeline. If you strike a natural gas pipeline, please immediately notify us even if the damage seems to be minor, such as a scrape or dent.

Safety is for everyone. Please watch for markers indicating where natural gas pipelines are located and always:

Georgia Power, Georgia 811 team up for new safety video

Staff reports

Georgia Power and Georgia 811 have teamed up to present a new public service announcement for National 811 Day on Aug. 11.

The PSA highlights the importance of contacting 811 to have underground power lines and other buried utilities marked before digging projects. The video features the Georgia 811 mascot, Digger Dog, and demonstrates how quick and easy it is to have underground lines identified.

Georgia Power works every day with Georgia 811, a nonprofit corporation dedicated to preventing damage to underground utilities and promoting public safety, to ensure that projects are safe and comply with the Georgia Dig Law. The law requires contact with Georgia 811 before mechanized digging to have buried power, communications, gas and water lines clearly marked, typically with flags, spray paint or both, to help prevent injuries, unintended service disruptions, repair costs and fines.

In the first six months of 2018, Georgia Power has responded to more than 420,000 requests for locating and marking of its underground power lines.

Georgia Power reminds customers of the importance of calling 811 or visiting MyGeorgia811.com to enter a location request at least two days before they dig.

There is no charge for 811 location requests and contacting 811 is also recommended for smaller, manual jobs such as planting trees, installing fences or mailboxes or other digging activity. Once the request is received, Georgia 811 notifies affected member utility companies, who send a professional technician to identify and mark underground lines.

The new PSA can be viewed on Georgia Power's YouTube page at <https://youtu.be/UbCT-tPITJo>.

Plant the right tree in the right place this spring

Georgia Power highlights importance of planting the right trees around homes, power lines

ATLANTA, Feb. 19, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Georgia Power works every day to keep reliability high across the state and, with Georgia Arbor Day marking the start of the spring planting season this month, the company encourages customers to make the right landscaping choices around homes and businesses. Planting the right tree in the right place may help decrease the likelihood of a power outage in the event of a storm while ensuring that power lines are clear of trees and brush provides also easier access to the company's power lines, which means quicker power restoration after a storm.

Georgia Power recommends dividing your yard into three specific planting zones - the Tall Zone (trees 60 feet or higher), the Medium Zone (trees no taller than 40 feet), and the Low Zone (trees and shrubs no taller than 25 feet). Trees and shrubs in the Low Zone may be planted 15 feet from electric utility wires.

In addition to helping customers select the right trees to plant, Georgia Power maintains 160,000 line acres and 24,000 miles of transmission and distribution lines under guidelines set by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC). These maintenance activities are an essential piece of the company's commitment to ensuring reliable service for 2.5 million customers in every corner of the state.

Georgia Power also reminds customers of the importance of calling 811 before they dig. Plant The Right Tree In The Right Place This Spring

G e o r g i a P o w e r h i g h

February 19, 2018 by Don Hammond

ATLANTA – Feb. 19, 2018 – Georgia Power works every day to keep reliability high across the state and, with Georgia Arbor Day marking the start of the spring planting season this month, the company encourages customers to make the right landscaping choices around homes and businesses.

Planting the right tree in the right place may help decrease the likelihood of a power outage in the event of a storm while ensuring that power lines are clear of trees and brush provides also easier access to the company's power lines, which means quicker power restoration after a storm.

Georgia Power recommends dividing your yard into three specific planting zones – the Tall Zone (trees 60 feet or higher), the Medium Zone (trees no taller than 40 feet), and the Low Zone (trees and shrubs no taller than 25 feet).

Trees and shrubs in the Low Zone may be planted 15 feet from electric utility wires.

In addition to helping customers select the right trees to plant, Georgia Power maintains 160,000 line acres and 24,000 miles of transmission and distribution lines under guidelines set by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC). These maintenance activities are an essential piece of the company's commitment to ensuring reliable service for 2.5 million customers in every corner of the state.

Georgia Power also reminds customers of the importance of calling 811 before they dig.

Important safety information from Atlanta Gas Light

Every day, underground pipelines safely transport natural gas to homes and businesses throughout the country. Atlanta Gas Light operates, secures and maintains the pipelines in our service territories.

Call before you dig
Before digging on your property, state law requires you call 811 to have your utility lines professionally marked – for free! You must wait the required amount of time before you begin your project. Pipeline markers indicate the presence of pipelines and rights of way. Because they are not present in all areas, it is important to always call 811. If a right of way is adjacent to your property, it is your responsibility to ensure no new landscaping or physical structure interferes with access to the pipeline, and with our ability to keep it safe through routine monitoring and maintenance.

Information about transmission pipelines operating in your community can be accessed online at npms.phmsa.dot.gov, courtesy of the National Pipeline Mapping System (NPMS).

Water heater safety
The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission urges all users to lower their water heaters to 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Carbon monoxide
Incomplete combustion of any fuel produces carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide is poisonous and has no odor, taste or color. Carbon monoxide detectors are helpful, but they are no substitute for using equipment safely. This includes having your appliances inspected once a year by a certified contractor.

Appliance safety
According to the Federal Emergency Management Agency:

- It is important that you have your furnace inspected by a qualified specialist.
- Be sure all furnace controls and emergency shut-offs are in proper working condition.
- Keep trash and other combustible material away from your air, heating and water heating systems.

Pipeline Integrity Management
Pipeline integrity management is a process for assessing and mitigating pipeline risks to reduce both the likelihood and consequences of incidents. We have a comprehensive plan that fully addresses these processes, especially for locations deemed high-consequence areas.

To learn more, visit atlantagaslight.com/integritymanagementplan.

If you smell gas, act fast!
Even though natural gas pipeline incidents are uncommon, you can help prevent emergencies by knowing the signs of a potential problem.

LOOK for blowing dirt, discolored vegetation or continued bubbling of standing water.

LISTEN for a hissing or roaring noise near a natural gas appliance or line.

SMELL the distinctive, rotten-egg odor associated with natural gas. Natural gas is colorless and odorless, so we add a chemical odorant called mercaptan for easy detection. This odorant has a distinctive "rotten-egg" type odor. You should act any time you detect even a small amount of this odor in the air.

If you suspect a natural gas leak, do the following:
LEAVE the area immediately and move a safe distance away from the potential leak, while avoiding any action that may cause sparks. Do not try to identify the source or to stop the leak yourself.

AVOID using any sources of ignition, such as cellphones, cigarettes, matches, flashlights, electronic devices, motorized vehicles, light switches or landlines, as natural gas can ignite from a spark, possibly causing a fire or explosion. Natural gas is non-toxic, lighter than air and displaces oxygen. In severe cases, if not used properly, it can also lead to asphyxiation.

CALL Atlanta Gas Light at 877.427.4321 or 911 once you are out of the area of the suspected leak and in a safe place. Stay away until Atlanta Gas Light or emergency personnel indicate it is safe to return.

Note: Do not solely rely on sense of smell to determine if a gas leak exists. Be aware that some individuals may not be able to detect the odorant because they have a diminished sense of smell, olfactory fatigue or because the odor is being masked by other odors in the area. Certain conditions may cause the odorant to diminish so that it is not detectable. Some gas lines, due to their unique function, may not have odor at all.

Georgia Power, Georgia 811 team up for safety video

Public service announcement highlights importance of contacting 811 before digging

Special to the Progress-Argus Aug 24, 2018 (0)

Georgia Power and Georgia 811 recently teamed up to present a new public service announcement for National 811 Day, Aug. 11.

The video highlights the importance of contacting 811 to have underground power lines and other buried utilities marked before digging projects. The video features the Georgia 811 mascot — Digger Dog — and demonstrates how quick and easy it is to have underground lines identified.

Georgia Power works every day with Georgia 811, a nonprofit corporation dedicated to preventing damage to underground utilities and promoting public safety, to ensure that projects are safe and comply with the Georgia Dig Law. The law requires contact with Georgia 811 before mechanized digging to have buried power, communications, gas and water lines clearly marked, typically with flags, spray paint or both, to help prevent injuries, unintended service disruptions, repair costs and fines. In the first six months of 2018, Georgia Power has responded to more than 420,000 requests for locating and marking of its underground power lines.

Georgia Power is reminding customers of the importance of calling 811 or visiting MyGeorgia811.com to enter a location request at least two days before they dig. There is no charge for 811 location requests and contacting 811 is also recommended for smaller manual jobs, such as planting trees, installing fences or mailboxes or other digging activity. Once the request is received, Georgia 811 notifies affected member utility companies, who send a professional technician to identify and mark underground lines.

The new public service announcement, available for hi-resolution media download in 15- and 30-second versions, can also be viewed on Georgia Power's YouTube, Twitter and Facebook pages.

City of Waynesboro, GA - Government

February 2 · 🌐

Natural gas, America's most popular home heating fuel, is increasingly popular for use by homeowners, schools, businesses, factories and electric power-generation plants because it is efficient, clean, reliable and a relative bargain compared to alternative energy sources.

In our community, the City of Waynesboro provides natural gas to more than 1250 customers through a network of underground distribution lines. Main gas lines, typically from 2 to 6 inches in diameter, branch into household service lines which are typically a half-inch to three-quarter-inches in diameter and buried 12- to 18-inches below the surface.

To protect you and others in the community, federal and state government, along with your utility provider, have made your safety a high priority. Any time you dig or move earth in any way, you are required to "Call Before You Dig" 48 hours before beginning any digging. When you call Georgia 811, they will contact utility owners who will locate all buried utility lines on your property, so you can safely dig and prevent a potentially hazardous condition. Failure to use the 811 system is a known cause of pipeline accidents. Calling before you dig can prevent a costly or even deadly mistake.

Natural gas is a colorless, odorless gas; however, a chemical that smells like rotten eggs is added to help detect a possible leak. Some of the signs of a gas leak include seeing bubbling water, hearing a hissing or blowing sound from a pipeline or appliance, dead or discolored vegetation in an otherwise green area, dirt or dust blowing from the ground, or the smell of rotten eggs.

If you smell gas, or just think you might be smelling gas, leave the area immediately and call your local gas provider at 706-554-8000 or 911 from a neighboring home or business. Never turn on or off switches or use a flashlight or phone in the presence of the gas smell, because an electric spark could ignite the gas, causing an explosion. Do your part to familiarize yourself and your family with these natural gas safety tips and continue to enjoy the value, comfort and benefits of America's cleanest, most efficient energy source!

To learn more about natural gas service and the benefits of natural gas, call 706-554-8000 or visit www.waynesboroga.com. For more information on "Call Before You Dig," visit www.georgia811.com.

SAVANNAH, GA (WTOC) - Crews worked to stop a gas leak on Liberty Lane for about two hours, Tuesday afternoon.

They were able to cap it around 5 p.m. The area is still closed to traffic while crews work to repair the line.

Dozens of Atlanta Gas Light workers and Savannah firefighters were, testing the air both inside and outside the buildings to make sure it was safe. The property manager who also works in construction says this isn't common.

"Gas leaks like this are not supposed to happen," said Taylor McMasters. "There's a free service that's offered by the state called 811 and you call every time that you dig and they mark your gas line."

Savannah Fire says the line was marked. There is no word yet on how it broke.

Mismarked gas line caused leak that sent people to hospital, contractor says

By: Nicole Carr

Updated: Dec 29, 2018 - 10:37 AM

Channel 2 Action News has learned the company charged with marking a gas line has taken responsibility for leaving a portion of the line unmarked, which caused a contractor to hit the line and force a major leak.

Northwest Atlanta businesses and residents were evacuated, and in some cases hospitalized Dec. 22, after a local contractor hit the line on Taylor Street.

"You literally smelled gas as if it was on you," said Fashion Ramsey, an employee at the DeFoor Centre where a 300-guest event was canceled due to evacuations.

Content Continues Below

Ramsey said more than a dozen event staffers headed to the ER.

"It had a bigger effect on people's health than people actually think," he said Friday.

"If there were any possible laws and regulations that weren't followed I'd hope there would be some kind of consequence," added Russell Dawkins, a Taylor Street resident who had to evacuate his home.

Channel 2 investigative reporter Nicole Carr retrieved a copy of the Atlanta Fire incident report showing Griffin-based Mallory Advance Underground Communications behind the work Saturday evening. It describes gas seeping through the pavement and the isolation zone quickly expanding.

Over the weekend, one of Mallory's workers told Carr that the portion of the gas line they hit was unmarked, as they worked to lay conduit for Verizon. They also addressed concerns with local businesses.

"Apparently from what the worker said, the line was incorrectly marked," said business owner, Amber Padgett. "And they dug from the opposite side, which is where the line was really at."

State law requires anyone digging, contractors or homeowners, to call 811 and have the lines marked themselves to ensure nothing like the Taylor Street incident happens.

The program is funded by state utilities and provides free markings and training within a 72-hour request period.

Late Friday, David Mallory, the contracting company's president returned Carr's call and confirmed he'd undergone the 811 process. He said USIC, the underground utility damage prevention corporation, mismarked the gas line.

"We had to fill out a damage claim, and it's on the damage claim report for them taking full responsibility," Mallory said.

Carr asked Mallory whether this has happened to his company before Saturday's leak.

"This is the first time in 20 years I've went through something like this," Mallory replied.

In past years' reports, the state has fined contractors and homeowners as much as $500,000 annually for similar mishaps, which can be coded as violations of the Georgia's "digging laws."

State regulators were not working Friday to field a request concerning whether fines will be levied against USIC in this case. Carr was not able to reach 811 partners, USIC, on Friday.

The City of Atlanta confirms it does not typically issue fines in these situations, although city resources are called upon to mitigate them.

ATLANTA – Feb. 19, 2018 – Georgia Power works every day to keep reliability high across the state and, with Georgia Arbor Day marking the start of the spring planting season this month, the company encourages customers to make the right landscaping choices around homes and businesses.

Planting the right tree in the right place may help decrease the likelihood of a power outage in the event of a storm while ensuring that power lines are clear of trees and brush provides also easier access to the company's power lines, which means quicker power restoration after a storm.

Georgia Power recommends dividing your yard into three specific planting zones – the Tall Zone (trees 60 feet or higher), the Medium Zone (trees no taller than 40 feet), and the Low Zone (trees and shrubs no taller than 25 feet).

Trees and shrubs in the Low Zone may be planted 15 feet from electric utility wires.

In addition to helping customers select the right trees to plant, Georgia Power maintains 160,000 line acres and 24,000 miles of transmission and distribution lines under guidelines set by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC). These maintenance activities are an essential piece of the company's commitment to ensuring reliable service for 2.5 million customers in every corner of the state.

Georgia Power also reminds customers of the importance of calling 811 before they dig.

The company works every day with Georgia 811 to ensure that projects are safe and comply with the "Georgia Dig Law."

"The law requires that workers contact Georgia 811 before digging to have all underground utility lines (such as power, communications, gas and water lines) clearly marked.

Georgia residents can call the free service at 8-1-1 or (800)-282-7411, or submit an electronic request at www.Georgia811.com.

In our community, City of Sugar Hill provides natural gas to more than 10,000 customers through a network of underground distribution lines. Main gas lines, typically 2-inch in diameter, branch into household service lines which are typically half-inch to three-quarter-inch in diameter and buried 12- to 18-inches below the surface. The service lines end at each customer's meter where gas is delivered.

To protect you and others in the community, federal and state government, along with your utility provider have made your safety a high priority. Any time you dig or move earth in any way, you are required to "Call Before You Dig 48 hours before beginning any digging. Natural gas is a colorless, odorless gas; however, a chemical that smells like rotten eggs is added to help detect a possible leak. Some of the signs of a gas leak include seeing bubbling water, hearing a hissing or blowing sound from a pipeline or appliance, dead or discolored vegetation in an otherwise green area, or dirt or dust blowing from the ground, or the smell of rotten eggs.

If you smell gas, or just think you might have a gas leak, leave the area immediately and call City of Sugar Hill at 770-271-2137 or 911 from a neighboring home or business. Never turn on or off switches, open or close garage doors, use a flashlight or phone/cellphone in the presence of the gas smell, as these devices may be a source of ignition, causing an explosion.

Be Safe. Dig Smart. Call First.

Call before you dig! When you plan to dig or move dirt with mechanical equipment, call 811 at least 48 hours before you dig. Your call to 811 will be directed to the local One Call Center who will then contact affected utilities to have the facilities in your area marked.

Failure to use 811 is a known cause of pipeline accidents. Calling before you dig is the law and can prevent a costly or even a deadly mistake. Striking an underground pipeline may result in fire, explosion and/or asphyxiation.

Here are some simple steps to damage prevention:

- ✓ Survey and Mark – Survey proposed excavation areas and mark the dig sites in white paint
- ✓ Call Before You Dig – 48 hours prior to digging, call 811 to have underground facilities located. It is the law in Georgia.
- ✓ Wait the Required Time – Allow utility owners time to locate and mark the lines
- ✓ Respect the Marks – Maintain visibility of the marks and safely follow them when digging
- ✓ Dig with Care – Hand excavate within 24-inches of each side of the locate marks. If you plan to dig anywhere near a marked area, especially using mechanized equipment, use a shovel and carefully hand-dig to expose the lines.

Natural gas is a colorless, odorless gas; however, a chemical that smells like rotten eggs is added to help detect a possible leak. It's a bad smell. That's good! Some of the signs of a gas leak include seeing bubbling water, hearing a hissing or blowing sound from a pipeline or appliance, dead or discolored vegetation in an otherwise green area, or dirt or dust blowing from the ground, or the smell of rotten eggs. If Your Equipment Contacts a Gas Line:

- Leave equipment; jumping clear and shuffling away – DO NOT turn off the engine.
- Warn others and leave the area quickly; DO NOT congregate around natural gas facilities
- Do not operate any gas pipeline valves or stop the flow of gas or try to fold over plastic pipelines
- Leave the excavation open.
- If gas is escaping the pipeline, call 911 then City of Sugar Hill at 770-271-2137
- If the line is nicked, scraped, gouged, dented or otherwise damaged but not leaking, call City of Sugar Hill at 770-271-2137; these may appear to be minor but can lead to future leaks if not properly repaired

Tenga Cuidado. Excave con Precaución.

Llame Primero.

¡Llame antes de excavar! Llame al 811 por lo menos 48 horas antes de comenzar a excavar la tierra con un equipo mecánico. Su llamada al 811 será dirigida a Un Centro de Llamadas locales y este centro se contactará con las empresa de servicios públicos encargado de marcar la área.

Es sabido que muchos accidentes de tuberías suceden por no llamar al 811. Llamar antes de excavar es una ley que puede prevenir un error costoso o inclusive la muerte. Golpear una tubería que está bajo tierra puede ocasionar un incendio, una explosión y hasta la asfixia.

Estos son algunos pasos sencillos para prevenir daños:

- ✓ Inspeccione y Marque: Inspeccione el área que planea excavar y marque con pintura blanca la área donde vas a trabajar.
- ✓ Llame Antes de Excavar: Llame 48 horas antes de excavar, a 811 para que le marquen las líneas subterráneas de servicios que están bajo tierra.
- ✓ Espera el Tiempo Requerido: Dele tiempo a los proveedores del servicio para localizar y marcar las líneas.
- ✓ Respete las Marcas: Mantenga visibles las marcas y sígalas con cuidado cuando empieces a excavar
- ✓ Excave con Cuidado: Excave a mano unas 24 pulgadas a cada lado de las marcas localizadas. Si planea excavar cerca del área marcada, especialmente con un equipo mecánico, use una pala y cave con la mano cuidadosamente hasta que se vean las líneas de gas.

El gas natural no tiene color ni olor; sin embargo, a este se le agrega un químico que huele como a huevos podridos para detectar una posible fuga. ¡Es un mal olor que trae algo bueno!

Algunas de las señales de una fuga de gas pueden ser ver agua burbujear, escuchar un silbido que viene del gasoducto o del electrodoméstico, ver la vegetación descolorida o sin vida en donde debería haber un área verde, ver polvo que sopla del suelo o sentir el olor a huevos podridos.

Si la máquina que está usando hace contacto con una Línea de Gas:

- Aléjese de la máquina y del área, NO apague el motor.
- Adviértale a los demás y salga del área rápidamente. NO se quede cerca de las líneas de gas natural
- No haga funcionar las válvulas de gas o no detener el flujo de gas o tampoco trate de doblar los conductos de plástico.
- Deje abierto el lugar de excavación.
- Si hay una fuga de gas, llame al 911 luego a City of Sugar Hill al 770-271-2137
- Si la línea de gas tiene algún corte o está raspada, arrancada, abollada o tiene algún otro daño pero no hay una fuga, llame a City of Sugar Hill al 770-271-2137. Estos daños parecen menores pero pueden dar lugar a fugas en el futuro si no se reparan correctamente.

El gas natural es el combustible de calefacción de hogar más popular en América. El gas natural en cada vez es más popular con propietarios, escuelas, negocios, factorías y plantas eléctricas por que el gas natural es más eficiente, limpio, fiable y una ganga relativa en comparación con otras formas de energía alternativa.

Para protegerlo a usted y a su comunidad, la seguridad y confiabilidad son de alta prioridad para el Gobierno Federal y Estatal, así como para City of Sugar Hill. Para más información relacionada con este anuncio, por favor llame al 770-271-2137.

AUGUST 11 (8/11) NATIONAL DIG SAFELY DAY SERVES AS CONVENIENT REMINDER FOR GEORGIA RESIDENTS TO ALWAYS CALL 811 BEFORE DIGGING

The Georgia Public Service Commission Encourages Georgians to Make a Free Call at Least Three Days before Digging to Know What's Below

Atlanta- Aug. 10, 2018 – With August 11 almost here, the Georgia Public Service Commission hopes this date on the calendar, 8/11, will serve as a natural reminder for residents to call 811 prior to any digging project to have underground utility lines marked. Every hour more than six damages to buried utilities occur because someone decided to dig without first calling 811.

When calling 811, homeowners and contractors are connected to Georgia 811, the local one call center, which notifies the appropriate utility companies of their intent to dig. Professional locators are then sent to the requested digging site to mark the approximate locations of underground lines with flags, spray paint or both.

Striking a single line can cause injury, repair costs, fines and inconvenient outages. Every digging project, no matter how large or small, warrants a call to 811. Installing a mailbox, building a deck, planting a tree and laying a patio are all examples of digging projects that need a call to 811 before starting.

"On August 11 and throughout the year, we remind homeowners and professional contractors alike to call 811 before digging to eliminate the risk of striking an underground utility line," said Commission Chairman Lauren "Bubba" McDonald, "It really is the only way to know which utilities are buried in your area."

The depth of utility lines can vary for a number of reasons, such as erosion, previous digging projects and uneven surfaces. Utility lines need to be properly marked because even when digging only a few inches, the risk of striking an underground utility line still exists.

You can visit www.call811.com or www.georgia811.com for more information about 811 and safe digging practices.

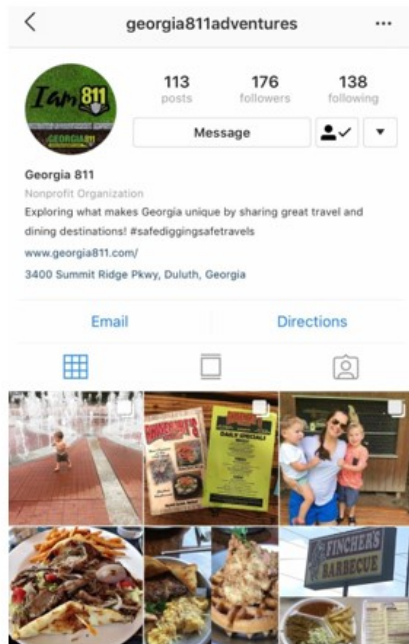

The Georgia Public Service Commission is a five-member constitutional agency that exercises its authority and influence to ensure that consumers receive safe, reliable, and reasonably-priced telecommunications, electric and natural gas service from financially viable and technically competent companies. Mass Mailing for PHMSA Requirement for Gas Operators sent by Georgia 811

Help prevent possible pipeline emergencies

Signs of a leak:

- Look for blowing dirt or continued bubbling in standing water, dead or discolored vegetation.
- Listen near a natural gas appliance or line; there may be a hissing or roaring sound when natural gas is leaking.
- Smell for the distinctive, rotten-egg odor associated with natural gas.

Note: Do not rely solely on the recognition of the scent of the odor, because of diminished sense of smell due to age or extended exposure, you may not immediately smell the odorant. In addition, the strength of the odorant may fade over time. However, some gas lines due to their unique function may not have odor at all.

Actions to take in case of leak:

- Leave the area immediately if you detect a natural gas leak. Don't try to identify the source or to stop the leak yourself.
- Avoid contact with anything that may cause a spark. This includes using lighters, matches, cigarettes, flashlights, light switches, cellphones and telephones in the area of the suspected leak. You should even wait until you are away from the area to use a cell phone.
- Call 911, your local gas company (see list inside) and Georgia 811 once you are out of the area of the suspected leak and in a safe place. Stay away until a representative from the pipeline operator or emergency personnel indicates it is safe to return.

Every day, natural gas is safely and efficiently delivered to millions of businesses and homes in the United States through more than two million miles of underground pipelines.

While incidents are uncommon, it's still important to educate yourself about natural gas safety. Even the smallest pipeline leak can have consequences such as fire or explosion.

Pipeline operators are concerned for your safety and adhere to state and federal pipeline safety regulations, perform quality control checks and educate the public on gas-leak recognition and prevention.

While those measures contribute to pipeline safety, the biggest threat remains with excavation activities. Please do your part to ensure pipeline safety by dialing 811 before you dig!

Remember

- Contact Georgia 811 before you dig by either dialing 811 or online at Georgia811.com
- Contact your local gas company (see list inside) before performing any demolition or removal of above ground structures.
- Wait the required amount of time (Forty eight hours notice beginning the next business day after such notice is provided, excluding hours during days other than business days.)
- Check the Positive Response Information System (PRIS) to see how utilities have responded to your locate request – Call 888.670.2902, access it online at Georgia811.com or download the G811 mobile app for Apple and Android devices. Respect the Marks, Dig With Care

- Natural gas has that "rotten egg" odor added for your protection. However, some gas lines due to their unique function may not have odor at all.

If you or someone you are working with hits a natural gas line or smell, see or hear gas escaping while digging or excavating, please do the following:

- Do not use any devices that might create a spark
- Go to a nearby phone and dial 911 and local pipeline operator's emergency line
- Keep everyone away from the line break until the site is made safe
- Remember: Demolition is considered excavation

Call before you dig

99%* of all incidents involving injury, damage to property and the environment, or utility service outages can be avoided by making a FREE call to 811 at least two to three business days prior to excavating. Examples of activities that require a call to 811 include:

- Building a fence
- Installing a pool
- Landscaping
- Installing a sprinkler system

Once the lines have been marked, you will know their approximate location and can safely begin your dig, following safe excavation practices.

* CGA Dirt Report 2013

Additionally, third-party contractors are subject to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) requirements. OSHA cites in its "General Duty Clause" possible regulatory enforcement action could be taken against excavation contractors who place their employees at risk by not utilizing proper damage prevention practices. The lack of adequate damage prevention could subject the excavator to OSHA regulatory enforcement.

Know what's below.
Call before you dig.

Pipelines are near you

You have received this information because your company is involved in excavation activities, which may involve you working in proximity to the pipelines in your area. These pipelines, operated by the companies whose fact sheets accompany this booklet, are part of the network of over 2.6 million miles of gathering, transmission, and distribution pipelines in the United States, transporting two-thirds of the energy we use each year.

How you can help keep pipelines safe

While no other method of transporting natural gas and petroleum products is as safe as pipelines, you can help by:

- Becoming familiar with the operators of pipelines and pipeline facilities in your area and keeping the enclosed fact sheets for future reference.
- Understanding the One-Call requirements and damage prevention laws in your area by utilizing the following site.
o <https://primis.phmsa.dot.gov/comm/DamagePreventionSummary.htm>
- Reporting any suspicious activity or unauthorized excavation taking place near pipelines or facilities by calling 911 and the pipeline company.
- Completing and returning the enclosed postage-paid survey.

Additionally, third-party contractors are subject to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) requirements. OSHA cites in its "General Duty Clause" possible regulatory enforcement action that could be taken against excavation contractors who place their employees at risk by not utilizing proper damage prevention practices. The lack of adequate damage prevention could subject the excavator to OSHA regulatory enforcement.

Pipeline rights-of-way

Rights-of-way are often recognizable as corridors that are clear of trees, buildings or other structures except for the pipeline markers. Encroachments upon a pipeline right-of-way inhibit the pipeline operator's ability to reduce the chance of third party damage, provide right-of-way surveillance and perform routine maintenance and required federal/state inspections. Keeping trees, shrubs, buildings, fences, structures and any other encroachments well away from the pipeline ensures that the pipeline integrity and safety are maintained.

How to recognize the location of a pipeline

Markers are located in the pipeline right-of-way and indicate the approximate location, but not the depth, of a buried pipeline.

Although not present in certain areas, these can be found at road crossings, fence lines, and street intersections. The markers display the product transported in the line, the name of the pipeline operator, and a telephone number where the operator can be reached in the event of an emergency.

Pipeline Safety and Damage Prevention*

PROHIBITION APPLICABLE TO EXCAVATORS. A person who engages in demolition, excavation, tunneling, or construction.

1. May not engage in a demolition, excavation, tunneling, or construction activity in a State that has adopted a One-Call notification system without first using that system to establish the location of underground facilities in the demolition, excavation, tunneling, or construction area;
2. May not engage in such demolition, excavation, tunneling, or construction activity in disregard of location information or markings established by a pipeline facility operator...;
3. And who causes damage to a pipeline facility that may endanger life or cause serious bodily harm or damage to property.
 - A. May not fail to promptly report the damage to the owner or operator of the facility; and
 - B. If the damage results in the escape of any flammable, toxic, or corrosive gas or liquid, may not fail to promptly report to other appropriate authorities by calling the 911 emergency telephone number.

* Pipeline Inspection, Protection, Enforcement, and Safety Act of 2006 [Section 2]

Digging safely around pipelines

State laws require you to maintain minimum clearance, or tolerance zone, between the point of excavation and a marked pipeline.

Even the most minor damage to a pipeline can have serious consequences. If you cause or witness even minor damage to a pipeline or its protective coating, do not cover up or attempt to repair the pipeline. Evacuate the area, call 911 and the pipeline company immediately.

The Tolerance Zone is a defined horizontal space from the outside wall or edge of an underground line or pipe. The size or width varies by state and is defined in the individual state One-Call legislation.

For more information on the tolerance zone requirements in your state, please visit: <https://primis.phmsa.dot.gov/comm/DamagePreventionSummary.htm>

If you suspect a pipeline leak*

Do:

- Make sure gas appliances are turned all the way OFF.
- Leave the area.
- Telephone 911 and the pipeline company from a safe location upwind, well away from the location of the leak.
- If it is safe to do so, warn others against entering the leak area and/or creating ignition sparks.

Do not:

- Start an engine of any kind.
- Strike matches or create a flame of any kind.
- Use a telephone or cell phone, unless from a safe location upwind, well away from the location of the leak.
- Turn on or off any light switches, garage door openers or other electrical switches.
- Touch, breathe or make contact with leaking product.
- Drive into a leak or vapor cloud area.

* <http://primis.phmsa.dot.gov/comm/EmergencyResponse.htm>

What a pipeline company does if a leak occurs

To prepare for the event of a leak, pipeline companies regularly communicate, plan and train with local emergency responders. Upon notification of an incident or leak, the pipeline company will immediately dispatch trained personnel to assist emergency responders. Pipeline companies and emergency responders are trained to protect life, property, and facilities in the case of an emergency. Pipeline companies will also take steps to minimize the amount of product that leaks out and to isolate the pipeline emergency.

Maintaining safety and integrity of pipelines

Pipeline companies invest significant time and capital maintaining the quality and integrity of their pipeline systems. Decisions you and your community make about land use may affect your safety. Most active pipelines are monitored 24 hours-a-day via manned control centers. Pipeline companies also utilize aerial surveillance and/or on-ground observers to identify potential dangers. Control center personnel continually monitor the pipeline system and assess changes in pressure and flow. They notify field personnel if there is a possibility of a leak. Automatic shut-off valves are sometimes utilized to isolate a leak.

Gas transmission and hazardous liquid pipeline companies have developed supplemental hazard and assessment programs known as Integrity Management Programs (IMPs). IMPs have been implemented for areas designated as "high consequence areas" in accordance with federal regulations. Specific information about a company's program may be found on their Web site, or by contacting them directly.

National Pipeline Mapping System (NPMS)

To view and download maps of transmission pipelines in your county, see the National Pipeline Mapping System website, npms.phmsa.dot.gov. This online platform is used by government officials, pipeline operators, and the general public for a variety of tasks including emergency response, smart growth planning, critical infrastructure protection, and environmental protection.

911 and 711*

Dialing 911 is the most familiar and effective way Americans have to find help in an emergency. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requires all Public Safety Answering Points (PSAPs) to provide direct, equal access to their emergency response services for people with disabilities who use TTYs or other devices. Therefore, in the event of an emergency, TTY users should call 911 directly and not make a TRS call via 711.

How to recognize a pipeline leak

Sight

Natural gas and Highly Volatile Liquids (HVL) are colorless and nearly invisible to the eye. Small leaks can be identified by looking for dying or discolored vegetation in a naturally green area.

Hazardous liquids produce a strong sheen or film standing on a body of water. A HVL leak may be identified by a fog-like vapor cloud in areas of high humidity. Natural gas is colorless, but blowing dirt around a pipeline area may be observed, or vapor and "ground frosting" may be visible at high pressures, regardless of temperature.

Other ways to recognize a leak may include: water bubbling up or standing in an unusual area, a mist or vapor cloud, a powerful fire or explosion with dense smoke plumes, or an area of petroleum-stained ground.

Sound

The volume of a pipeline leak can range from a quiet hissing to a loud roar, depending on the size and nature of the leak.

Smell

An unusual smell, petroleum or gaseous odor will sometimes accompany pipeline leaks. Natural gas and HVLs are colorless, tasteless and odorless unless odorants, such as Mercaptan, are added.

Most HVLs contain a slight hydro-carbon or pungent odor. Most are non-toxic; however, products such as ammonia are considered a toxic chemical and can burn the senses when it seeks out moisture (eyes, nose or lungs). If inhaled, HVLs may cause dizziness or asphyxiation without warning.

Hay líneas de tuberías cerca de usted

Usted ha recibido esta información debido a que su compañía está involucrada en actividades de excavación, lo cual puede conllevar que usted trabaje en las cercanías de las líneas de tuberías que se encuentran en su área. Estas líneas de tuberías, las cuales son operadas por las compañías que presentan sus hojas de datos en este folleto, son partes de la red de más de 2.6 millones de millas de líneas de tuberías de recolección, transmisión y de distribución en los Estados Unidos, y que transportan dos tercios partes de la energía que utilizamos cada día.

Como usted puede ayudar a mantener seguras las líneas de tuberías

Aunque no hay ningún otro método tan seguro en el transporte de gas y de productos de petróleo como lo son las líneas de tuberías, usted puede ayudar haciendo lo siguiente:

- Familiarizándose con los operadores de las líneas de tuberías y con las instalaciones de líneas de tuberías que se encuentran en su área y conservando las hojas de datos incluidas con este folleto para referencia futura.
- Comprendiendo los requisitos de Una-Llamada y las leyes de prevención de daños de su área utilizando el siguiente sitio del internet: <https://primis.phmsa.dot.gov/comm/DamagePreventionSummary.htm>
- Reportando cualquier actividad sospechosa o excavación no autorizada que se esté llevando a cabo cerca de las líneas de tuberías o de las instalaciones llamando al 911 y a la compañía de las líneas de tuberías.
- Completando y enviando la encuesta y la tarjeta de comentarios incluida con franqueo pre-pagado.

Llame antes de excavar

El 99% de los incidentes que envuelven lesiones, daños a la propiedad y al medio ambiente, o interrupción de servicios de utilidades pueden ser prevenidos haciendo una LLAMADA GRATIS al 811 por lo menos dos a tres días laborales antes de comenzar a excavar. Algunos ejemplos de las actividades que requieren una llamada al 811 incluyen:

- Construir una cerca
- Ajustar el nivel
- Instalar un alberca
- Instalar un sistema de aspersores

Una vez las líneas de tuberías han sido marcadas, usted sabrá la ubicación aproximada de estas y podrá comenzar a excavar con seguridad, siguiendo las prácticas de excavación seguras.

* CGA DRI Report 2013

Además, los contratistas externos están sujetos a los requisitos de la Administración de Seguridad y Salud Ocupacional ("OSHA" por sus siglas en inglés). OSHA cita en su "Cláusula de Obligaciones Generales" posibles medidas de cumplimiento de regulaciones que podrían adaptarse contra contratistas de excavación que ponen a sus empleados en situaciones de peligro al no utilizar prácticas apropiadas de prevención de daños. La falta de una prevención contra daños adecuada podría someter al excavador al cumplimiento de regulaciones de OSHA.

Derechos-de-paso de una línea de tuberías

Los derechos-de-paso usualmente son reconocidos como patios en el terreno que se encuentran libres de árboles, edificios y de otras estructuras con excepción de los marcadores de líneas de tuberías. Las intrusiones en el derecho-de-paso de una línea de tuberías impiden la habilidad del operador de la línea de tuberías de poder reducir los daños ocasionados por terceras personas, proveer vigilancia en el derecho de paso y de realizar el mantenimiento y las inspecciones requeridas por las leyes federales/estatales. Si mantener árboles, arbores, edificios, cercas, estructuras y cualquier otra intrusión bien alejados de la línea de tuberías asegura que se mantenga la integridad y la seguridad de la línea de tuberías.

Como reconocer la ubicación de una línea de tuberías

Los marcadores están ubicados en el derecho de paso de la línea de tuberías e indican la ubicación aproximada, pero no la profundidad, de una línea de tuberías enterrada.

Aunque no siempre están presentes en ciertas áreas, estos marcadores se pueden encontrar en los cruces de ferrocarriles, las cercas y en las intersecciones de calles. Los marcadores muestran el producto que es transportado en la línea, el nombre del operador de la línea de tuberías y un número de teléfono donde puede contactar al operador en el caso de una emergencia.

De izquierda a derecha: Marcador TView™, Marcador Domo, Marcador Plano, Marcador Redondo, Marcador Aéreo, Marcadores de Tubos de Ventilación.

La seguridad y prevención de daños en las líneas de tuberías*

PROHIBICIÓN APLICABLE A LOS EXCAVADORES. Una persona que participa en demolición, excavación, elaboración de túneles o construcción.

1. No podrá participar en actividades de demolición, excavación, elaboración de túneles o de construcción en un Estado que ha adoptado el sistema de notificación de Una-Llamada sin antes utilizar el sistema para establecer la ubicación de las instalaciones subterráneas en el área de demolición, excavación, elaboración de túneles o de construcción.
2. No podrá participar en tales actividades de demolición, excavación, elaboración de túneles o construcción ignorando la información de localización o los marcadores establecidos por el operador de una instalación de una línea de tuberías...
3. Y una persona que cause daños a una instalación de una línea de tuberías puede poner las vidas en peligro o causar lesiones corporales graves o daños a la propiedad.
 - A. No pueden dejar de reportar rápidamente el daño al dueño u operador de la instalación; y
 - B. Si el daño resulta en un escape de cualquier gas o líquido inflamable, tóxico o corrosivo, no debe dejar de reportar rápidamente a las otras autoridades apropiadas llamando al número de teléfono de emergencias del 911.

* Decreto de Inspección, Protección, Cumplimiento y de Seguridad del 2006 (Sección 2)

Excavando con seguridad alrededor de las líneas de tuberías

Las leyes estatales requieren que usted mantenga una separación mínima, o zona de tolerancia, entre el punto de excavación y la línea de tuberías que ha sido marcada.

Aun un daño menor a la línea de tuberías puede tener consecuencias severas. Si usted ocasiona o evidencia cualquier daño, por leve que sea, a una línea de tuberías o a su capa protectora, no tape ni intente reparar la línea de tuberías. Evacúe inmediatamente el área, llame al 911 y a la compañía de la línea de tuberías.

La zona de tolerancia es un espacio horizontal definido desde la pared exterior o desde el borde de una línea o tubería subterránea. El tamaño o anchura varía por estado individualmente y está definida en la legislación de Una Llamada de cada estado.

Para obtener más información acerca de los requisitos de las zonas de tolerancias de su estado, por favor visite: <https://primis.phmsa.dot.gov/comm/DamagePreventionSummary.htm>

Si usted sospecha que hay una fuga en una línea de tuberías*

Debe:

- Asegurarse que todos los aparatos de gas estén completamente APAGADOS.
- Abandonar el área.
- Llamar al 911 y a la compañía de la línea de tuberías desde un lugar seguro que esté en contra del viento y muy lejos del lugar de la fuga.
- Si es posible hacerlo con seguridad, alertar a otros a que no entren al lugar de la fuga ni que crean ninguna chispa de encendido.

No debe:

- Encender ningún motor de ningún tipo.
- Encender ningún fósforo ni ocasionar ningún tipo de llama.
- Usar ningún teléfono ni ningún celular, a menos que se encuentre en lugar seguro y en contra del viento, muy alejado de la ubicación de la fuga.
- Encender ni apagar ningún interruptor de luz, ningún abridor automático para puertas de garaje ni ningún otro interruptor eléctrico.
- Tocar, inhalar ni hacer contacto con la fuga del producto.
- Manejar en la dirección del área de una fuga o de una nube de vapor.

911 y 711*

El marcar el 911 es la manera más conocida y efectiva que los estadounidenses tienen para adquirir ayuda en caso de una emergencia. La Ley de Estadounidenses con Discapacidades ("ADA" por sus siglas en inglés) requiere que todos los Puntos de Respuesta de Seguridad Pública ("PSAPs" por sus siglas en inglés) provean acceso directo e igualitario a sus servicios de respuesta a emergencias a las personas discapacitadas que usen TTY u otros aparatos de teléfono. De modo que en caso de una emergencia, los usuarios de TTY deben llamar al 911 directamente y no deben hacer una llamada TRS a través del 711.

Como reconocer una fuga en una línea de tuberías

Vista

El gas natural y los Líquidos Altamente Volátiles (HAV, por sus siglas en inglés) no tienen color y son casi invisibles al ojo humano. Las fugas pequeñas pueden ser identificadas al ver vegetación que se está muriendo o que está descolorida en un área que usualmente es verde.

Los líquidos peligrosos producen un brillo o una capa sólida sobre un cuerpo de agua. Una fuga de "HAV" puede ser identificada por una nube de vapor que parece neblina en áreas de alta humedad. El gas natural no tiene color, pero puede que se vea lleno llenado soplando alrededor del área de una línea de tuberías, o vapor y "lluvia congelada" podría ser visible a presiones altas, independiente a la temperatura.

Otros modos de como reconocer una fuga puede incluir: agua burbujeando o estancada en un área inusual, una nube de rocío o de vapor, un fuego o una explosión potente con columnas densas de humo, o una área de tierra manchada por petróleo.

Sonido

El volumen de sonido de una fuga en una línea de tuberías puede variar entre un silbido silencioso y un rugido fuerte, dependiendo del tamaño y de la naturaleza de la fuga.

Olor

A veces un olor inusual, un olor gaseoso o de petróleo puede acompañar las fugas en una línea de tuberías. El gas natural o los HAVs no tienen color, sabor ni olor a menos que se le haya añadido aditivos como el Mercaptano.

Casi todos los HAVs contienen un olor suave de hidrocarburo o un olor acre. La mayoría no son tóxicos; sin embargo, los productos como el amoníaco son considerados como un químico tóxico y pueden quemar las sensadas cuando se unen a humedad (ojos, nariz o los pulmones). Si los HAVs son inhalados pueden causar mareos o asfixia sin ningún previo aviso.

Lo que una compañía de líneas de tuberías hace si ocurre una fuga

Para estar preparados en caso de una fuga, las compañías de líneas de tuberías regularmente se comunican, planean y entrenan con los respondedores locales de emergencias. Al recibir una notificación de un incidente o fuga, la compañía de líneas de tuberías enviará inmediatamente su personal entrenado para asistir a los respondedores de emergencias. Los operadores de líneas de tuberías y los respondedores de emergencias están entrenados para proteger vidas, propiedades e instalaciones en caso de una emergencia. Los operadores de líneas de tuberías también toman pasos para minimizar la cantidad de producto que se esté escapando y aislar la emergencia en la línea de tuberías.

Manteniendo la seguridad y la integridad de las líneas de tuberías

Las compañías de líneas de tuberías invierten una cantidad considerable de tiempo y capital para mantener la calidad e integridad de sus sistemas de líneas de tuberías. Las decisiones que usted y su comunidad toman sobre el uso del terreno pueden afectar su seguridad. La mayoría de las líneas de tuberías activas son monitoreadas las 24 horas del día a través de centros de control con personal. Las compañías de líneas de tuberías también utilizan vigilancia aérea y/o observadores en la tierra para identificar daños potenciales. El personal del centro de control monitorea continuamente el sistema de líneas de tuberías y evalúa cambios en presión y flujo. Ellos le notifican al personal de campo si existe una posibilidad de una fuga. Las válvulas de cierre automático a veces son utilizadas para aislar una fuga.

Las compañías de líneas de tuberías de transmisión de gas y de líquidos peligrosos han desarrollado programas suplementarios de evaluación de peligros conocidos como Programas de Manejo de Integridad ("IMI" por sus siglas en inglés). Los IMIs han sido implementados para las áreas designadas como "áreas de alta consecuencia" en conformidad con las regulaciones federales. Usted puede encontrar información específica acerca del programa de una compañía en su sitio web o contactándolas directamente.

Sistema Nacional de Mapas de Líneas de Tuberías ("NPMS" por sus siglas en inglés)

Para ver o para descargar los mapas de líneas de transmisión que se encuentran en su condado, vea el sitio web del Sistema Nacional de Mapas de Líneas de Tuberías, npms.phmsa.dot.gov. Esta plataforma en línea es utilizada por los oficiales del gobierno, los operadores de las líneas de tuberías y por el público en general para una variedad de funciones incluyendo la respuesta a emergencias, planificación de crecimiento inteligente, protección de las infraestructuras críticas y para la protección del medio ambiente.
