Lavender 'Goodwin Creek Grey' in ceramic cachepot with saucer

The Best Lavender for Indoors
Enjoy the fresh scent of Lavender year round! 'Goodwin Creek Grey' is an unusual hybrid that will thrive as a houseplant in a sunny window. It produces spikes of deep blue, pungently fragrant flowers above a lush mound of silver foliage. The plant is also hardy to Zone 7 (0°F) and warmer, where it may be transplanted to the garden in spring, leaving this attractive 7-inch, blue-green ceramic pot with matching saucer for other jobs. The color of the glaze varies on the kiln-fired pot, so no two are exactly alike.

Lavender 'Goodwin Creek Grey' sells for $42, plus shipping. To order:

DAMAGE PREVENTION NEWS

A Natural Damage Prevention Reminder: 8-11 Day

August 11, 2010 • Alexandria, VA ■

The date of August 11, 2010, and more commonly referred to as 8-11 day, will serve as a natural reminder for the general public to call 811 prior to digging. In 2009, Common Ground Alliance (CGA) stakeholders converged on the rope lines of nationally televised news morning shows in New York City in an effort to garner broad exposure for the 811 damage prevention message. Building off of last year's successes, CGA stakeholders will once again work together to maximize exposure.

CGA will post tools to www.call811.com including press releases and 'event-in-a-box' concepts that stakeholders can localize to support media outreach in their respective areas. It is anticipated that stakeholders will once again be sporting 811 T-shirts and banners in New York City during the morning shows again this year on August 11.

Those interested in supporting the 811 public awareness campaign are encouraged to visit www.call811.com and click on campaign materials to access free support materials, ads and public service announcements. The web site is owned and maintained by the Common Ground Alliance.

Excavation Damage Continues to be a Leading Cause of Serious Pipeline Incidents

Serious pipeline incidents can result in fatalities and injuries requiring hospitalization. Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration (PHMSA) has undertaken a broad array of initiatives designed to engage all stakeholders in efforts to reduce the risk of excavation damage to pipelines.

State Damage Prevention Program Characterizations

PHMSA recently initiated an effort to assess the extent to which each state is taking steps to incorporate the nine elements of effective damage prevention programs into the state's damage prevention program. The nine elements were cited by Congress in the Pipeline Inspection, Protection, Enforcement and Safety (PIPES) Act of 2006. Working with state pipeline safety program managers and one-call centers, PHMSA sought to gain a better understanding of the successes and challenges existing in state damage prevention programs, where states need improvement, and where PHMSA should focus its assistance. To support this effort, PHMSA developed a questionnaire to use as a program characterization tool. The results of the SDPPC initiative are available. These program characterizations may change from time to time as states take steps to strengthen their programs.

One-Call Centers

The primary tool for avoiding damages to underground facilities is timely communication between excavators and the owners of the facilities. It is important to Call Before You Dig and Dig Safely. One-call centers facilitate this communication process by enabling an excavator to place just one call, prior to digging, to request that all underground facilities in the area of a planned excavation be located and marked.

2010 International Locate Rodeo

by Meghan Chestnutt

In 2001, Georgia 811 set out to create a competition to positively recognize locate technicians. Often, their work locating underground utilities was only noticed when something went wrong and an underground line got damaged, but what about all the times things go right? "This competition provides an opportunity to recognize the great work of individuals and a profession that normally goes unnoticed unless a mistake is made," states Claudette Campbell, President and CEO of Georgia 811.

In recent years Georgia 811 has co-hosted this event with the National Utility Locate Contractors Association place on Saturday, August 7, 2010 on the campus of Georgia Institute of Technology (Georgia Tech) in Atlanta.

Competitor's select one of the four utility divisions to compete in: Gas, Power, Telecom or Water. Once a division is selected, the locate technician performs locates at three event sites. Accuracy is paramount and time is of the essence. "While accuracy is essential in a competition, if you throw in a time factor, the heightened anxiety and nerve factor become an integral part of the overall state of the locate technician who chooses to compete," shares Fiona Bowen, Locate Rodeo event coordinator.

An optional Bonus Event, fondly referred to as "The Locate From Hell," is open to any competitor. This provides competitors an opportunity to win additional money if they choose to participate. The rules are different in this event as the competitor only has 3 minutes to complete the event of the Rodeo Equipment Manufacturers Challenge (REMC) sponsors.

This year, Krylon Industrial, who has been a sponsor since 2004, is the Locate Rodeo's first-ever double diamond sponsor becoming the Official Marking Paint Sponsor for the International Utility Locate Rodeo. "We feel this event is the perfect setting to recognize not only the skill and dedication of all locators, but also the importance of the locating industry and the job that all locators do to keep us all safe every day," said Rick Barone, Senior Product Manager, Krylon. "Locate Rodeo is such an important event and we think by increasing the overall awareness of the event, we will also be increasing the general awareness of locators and the importance of the jobs they do every day."

In addition to becoming the official Marking Paint Sponsor, Krylon is offering three Krylon Industrial Locate Rodeo Scholarships. "With the economic climate (NULCA). Both the mission of NULCA and the mission of Locate Rodeo fit well together. Both groups put importance on high quality and high standards for locate technicians, and for the damage prevention process as a whole.

The International Utility Locate Rodeo (Locate Rodeo), held annually, will take and must use equipment provided by the event sponsors.

A total rodeo purse of $8,750 has been awarded each year, broken down to five $1,000 first place winners, five $500 second place winners and five $250 third place winners. Winnings can grow for first place competitors who use the equipment that we've experienced in the last couple of years, we wanted to do our part and give all locators and locating companies a chance to participate," added Sharon Sammon, Product Manager, Krylon.

Sunshine State One Call of Florida is offering scholarships to this year's rodeo in the "No Bull Rodeo Challenge" and

by Meghan Chestnutt

Calling before you dig begins an important communication process. The call, the locate request, the paint marking the lines, it is all communication. To make that communication more successful and to attract more people to use it, call centers around the nation put a great deal of effort into their marketing and public education campaigns. Funding these programs can be maddening. Safe dig is such an important message, but why must it cost so much to deliver it effectively?

All of this led to the formation of the group Mark-It! Madness (MiM). The group began informally in May 2007 with the national launch of the "The new three digit 'call before you dig number' gave us a common denominator. Despite the different laws and requirements found in each state, we could now use the same, easy to remember phone number," shares Meghan Chestnutt, Current Co-Chair for MiM and Corporate Communications Manager for Georgia 811. "This commonality allowed for an opportunity to cost share like never before."

Bremen, Georgia

state gardening, US News and World report, US Airways and others. "These ads have reached of over 10.9 million readers to since January 2010. In 2009 the group's efforts reached over 20 million readers. The retail cost of these 2010 ads would have been just below $240,000, but smart shopping and cost sharing made these ad placements possible at a much more affordable rate," said Chestnutt.

Most recently MiM has been adding more grass roots campaigns to their efforts. Taken from an idea that began with Dig Safely New York, several of the participating MiM states got stakeholders involved locally to get the word out. 4-foot by 8-foot banners began posting just in time for Dig Safely month 2010 in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, New York and Ohio. 620 banners in total were purchased as a group buying at a reduced rate and then provided to stakeholders to post around their respective states. "Dig Safely Month provided the urgency to get the banners out and posted," explains Chestnutt. "Some banners appeared at local events, in parades, at training events while others found more permanent homes along road ways, on buildings and fences, at maintenance shops, retail stores and rental centers."

A campaign from Julie in Illinois called "Fire House Signs" has spread like, well..., wild fire. JULIE reported over 8 million cars went by these messages in 2009. Joining them this year were the one call centers in Alabama, Colorado, Florida, New York (Dig Safely), Michigan and Ohio. Each call center mailed their fire departments asking them to post a safe digging message on their marquees during safe digging month. In addition, the call centers sent ideas for what to post and asked that participating fire houses please send back a photo of their sign. JULIE even expanded their campaign to include other business and organizations that have marquees. "All of these messages posted in these states at no charge to the one call centers, but the value in this type of campaign is huge," said Chestnutt.

"Often we (MiM) are asked how someone can participate in these campaigns," states Chestnutt "For those stakeholders who are not one call centers, my advice is that you support your OCOA one call center in your service areas. Help them fund a campaign or ask what resources they may have that you could use at your locations. You will find many of these resources are free or offered at a low price. If you have employees or inventory that are protected when safe digging occurs, there are resources for you. Know what's below. Call 811 before you dig."

2010 International Utility Locate Rodeo And the Winners Are...

by Meghan Chestnutt

The mission of the International Utility Locate Rodeo (Locate Rodeo) is to be the preeminent event for Utility Locate Technicians. Locate Rodeo is designed to celebrate the art and science behind the craft of underground utility locating. It recognizes and serves as the cornerstone for promoting high quality and achievable standards in the industry.

"Many stakeholders have a part in the damage prevention process, but often Locate Technicians don't get recognized for a job well done. The Locate Rodeo was created to do just that. Calling before you dig is just the first step, a locate technician's job is just as important, as are all the steps in the safe digging process." shares Claudette Campbell, President and CEO of Georgia 811.

On Saturday, August 7, 2010, competitors arrived on the campus of Georgia Tech in Atlanta, Georgia to participate in the 9th Annual International Utility Locate Rodeo. Arriving from 24 states and Canada representing 41 different companies and stakeholders. Competitors were greeted by more than 115 volunteers from 20 different states and Canada representing 42 companies.

"The atmosphere of the Locate Rodeo is extremely unique; it brings the locate tech's competitiveness out while simultaneously showing unconditional support to their peers. This is an opportunity to showcase locating skills on an international level and meet other Locate Technicians from across the world. This truly is the one event that allows all the key members of our industry to gather in one location," explains Vincent Marchese III, NULCA President who is also Vice President Premier Utility Services, LLC.

Competitors compete in one of four divisions: gas, power, telecom or water. Within each division, their skills are put to the test at three different event sites. The scores from all three event sites are used to determine the winner. Each competitor is allowed 12 minutes to complete an event and time is used as a tie breaker. A bonus event, the Locate From Hell (LFH), is open to any competitor who feels they are up to the challenge.

Decisions to participate in the LFH are voluntary and it differs from other divisions in several ways. First, there is only one event site. Second, the competitor only has 3 minutes of mean time for locating. Third, the competitor may not use his or her own equipment. They are required to select *equipment from one of the participating Rodeo Equipment Manufacturer sponsors. This year's LFH challenge was accepted by 90 competitors.

First place winners in each division win $1000. Second place earns $500 and third takes home $250. The total purse for the event is $8750. In addition to the Rodeo winnings, the Rodeo Equipment Manufacturer's Challenge (REMC) makes it possible for first place winners to add up to $1000 more to their first place winnings. In addition, Double Diamond Sponsor Krylon awarded $100 to each first place winner.

For the 2010 competition, Radiodetection and Vivax/Metrotech sponsored all our divisions and the LFH. Winners in each division, who declared their use of an REMC's equipment, could have added $1000 to their winnings.

GEORGIA MAGAZINE

georgia news COMPILED BY JENNIFER J. HEWETT

April 2010 is 'Safe Digging Month'

April 1 may be April Fools' Day, but it is no reason to make foolish assumptions about the location of underground utilities. April 1, 2010, marks the first day of Georgia's Dig Safely Month, as declared by Gov. Sonny Perdue. Georgia 811 and Perdue encourage residents to "call before you dig."

Everyone who will be digging—homeowners, landscapers, plumbers, farmers and professional excavators alike—is required to dial 811 before beginning a digging project, no matter how small the job. Utility services like phone, gas, power, water and cable that your family depends on are buried underground. Striking a single line can result in harm to yourself or someone else, costly fines and repair fees, or inconvenient outages.

The free call to 811 is easy to remember, and it [also] keeps you in compliance with the Georgia "Dig Law."

On average, one call to Georgia 811 will notify seven utility companies where digging will take place. These member companies dispatch technicians to mark the underground lines with colored paint and/or flags. Notify Georgia 811 at least two business days before excavation begins on public and private property, rights of way and easements.

Established in 1974, Georgia 811 is a nonprofit organization comprised of more than 700 member utility companies, including cities and counties throughout Georgia that benefit through reductions in accidents, service inter costly repairs.

For more information visit the Georgia 811 Web site www.georgia811.com. For more information on the Georgia "Dig Law" visit the Public Service Commission at www.psc.state.ga.us.

Centennial Farms deadline appro

The Georgia Centennial Farms program is searching for historic farms with at least 10 acres, primarily involved in agricultural production or generating a minimum of $10,000 annual income. In addition, the farm must have been continuously operated for at least 100 years and have members of the same family for 100 years or be listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Established in 1993, the program encourages the preservation of historic farmsteads, and since the program's start, nearly 360 farms throughout the state have been designated as Centennial Farms.

To apply, visit the Historic Preservation Division's Web site at www.dnr.state.ga.us/content/display.asp?txtDocument=119. For more information, contact Gretchen Hester at (404) 651-6782 or gretchen.hester@dnr.state.ga.us. Applications are due by April 30.

Letting conservation flow

Rome's new ECO River Education Center, located on the Oostanaula River near the confluence of the Etowah and Coosa rivers, is set to open April 17 during the city's Waterfest celebration, and will help educate visitors of all ages about local water resources and conservation. Featuring interactive exhibits, large classroom space and historical photo displays, the building also houses an aquarium and other tanks showcasing aquatic life native to the region.

Buttermilk that might pass muster with Damon Lee Fowler is produced from cows that have not received growth hormones from two Georgia dairies that also produce non-homogenized milk. Johnston Family Farms, in Newborn, raises grass-fed cattle, while Moultrie Sparkman's Cream Valley, which also produces butter, does a fine whole-milk buttermilk. For yogurt, see Atlanta Fresh Artisan Creamery's yogurt, made from Johnston Family Farm's non-homogenized milk. Available at Publix, Pennsylvania's famous Marburger Farm Dairy whole milk buttermilk is quite good.*

Install Your Own Sprinkler Sys

Yes, this is potentially a weekend project, but it requires a great deal of advance planning in order to make it work. You will need to assemble the necessary tools, equipment and materials...and have them ready for the big day! Finally, a friend or two would make the entire process go much more smoothly.

Don't forget to have all underground utilities located before you dig ... call 811 or 1-800-272-3020. Alternatively, you can go online to find your state information (www.call811.com). This can help you avoid cutting through water, gas, electric, cable or phone lines. It is your legal responsibility to make this call. There is no charge for the marking service, and it is generally done for you within a couple of days after calling.

If a permanent underground system is to be installed, it will be necessary to have a licensed plumber or irrigation contractor with a backflow certificate make the connection to the mainline. An approved backflow prevention device, such as a pressure vacuum breaker (PVB), must be used to prevent possible contamination of municipal drinking water supplies. Again, this is not an option, but rather a legal requirement.

PLANNING

The degree of complexity involved in the planning and installation varies greatly from a simple water line with a faucet and hose to a completely automated system with a controller (timer), solenoid valves, backflow prevention and a variety of spray heads. Cost can likewise range from as little as $50 for the simple pipe and hose to as much as $10,000 for a complete, professionally installed system. There is a whole range of alternatives between these extremes, with decisions to be made as to delong hoses over the years, when their life is simplified and many hours are saved simply running a water line from an existing faucet to the place where it is needed. A minimal investment in pipe, fittings, and labor can result in great savings of time and effort over a typical growing season.

Adding an inexpensive timer and automatic valve can provide water to a small area or to potted plants on a regular basis. This may be a great way to prevent plant losses while you are away from home. You may find that this also allows you to reduce the time normally needed for routine watering, freeing up your time for other activities.

A relatively simple irrigation project may only require a visit with your local irrigation supplier. He can generally suggest the best way to lay out the system and put together a list of materials. If you are considering an extensive whole-landscape irrigation system, it would be wise to consult with a professional irrigation contractor to make sure that the system will function properly, safely and efficiently. A well-designed system is generally no more expensive than a poorly planned (or non-planned) system. Advance planning can avoid a number of problems later on and generally will save money and water as well! You will need to know what size water meter, type of supply line, available water quantity (gallons per minute), pressure (pounds per square inch), water quality and elevation changes on site. Also to be noted are type of plants to be watered, microclimate, slope, degree of exposure or shade, etc. An accurate, scaled plot plan is fairly important to this process.

Careful Planning, D Pull Consumers Ou

Consumers forced to cut their spending are most likely to succeed when they build a financial plan, create a budget, and have the discipline to stick with that budget. U.S. News interviewed four credit counselors who work for ClearPoint Credit Counseling Solutions, a national nonprofit that receives financial support from credit card companies and other sources and charges consumers no more than $35 for its services: Ashley Adami (in Seattle), Michael Carter (St. Louis), Karen Metoyer (Sacramento, Calif.), and Tina Webb-Bouttry (Charlotte, N.C.). Many forces spur consumers to seek credit counseling. Carter commonly sees consumers who have been overextended for years, then hammered by problems in the housing market. "They know if they lose their jobs, they will lose everything," he says.

When consumers finally visit a counselor, they have often exhausted common-sense spending cuts. They have supplemented their income by overextending their credit and are being besieged by debt collectors.

Strict budgets. One of the first things a counselor can do is provide reassurance that help is on the way. "Just getting a second set of eyes" on their problems can help, Adami says. Forcing consumers to tote up their debts is a painful but helpful exercise. Many consumers living under crushing debt simply avoid their problems, Metoyer says. Mail piles up unopened because don't want to see another notice. Cellphones are programmed to block debtor calls. "The thing we suggest is that they to open up all that mail and it out," she says.

...n time I came to appreciate being exposed to all these functions of a city, but I'll admit at the time I was really overwhelmed by so many demands all at the same time."

In 1986 the Cherokee County Water Sewerage Authority (CCWSA) was constructing its first water treatment facility. Toward the last quarter of that year the Authority advertised for a water treatment operator to be responsible for the staffing and operation of had met when I was with Manchester, called me one day to tell me about this job opportunity and to ask if I had any interest in applying (Welker & Associates did most of the Authority's engineering work at that time and had designed and managed the construction of the new water treatment facility). I was fortunate again to be chosen to fill that position and I began work with CCWSA on September 1, 1986. Over the years the job expanded to

I managed this part of the CCWSA operations until I moved into my current position in the mid 1990s. I have had the opportunity to be involved in many aspects of the CCWSA.

It has been 29 years this June since I started working with water. It has developed into a really satisfying career. When I first started, water works professionals had very little respect and were poorly paid. Population growth and several rather severe drought periods have done a lot to increase public awareness of the importance of their water resources and the people that manage them. I have seen major improvement in respect for water professionals through the years. I think that is great and appropriate; after all, what is more fundamental to our lives than clean water?

What/who have been the major influences on your career in water works?

I have had the opportunity to work with and learn from many extraordinary individuals through the years. I think the saying goes that we reach higher goals because we stand on the shoulders of those that have gone before us. Gentlemen leaders like Mr. Tom Wootten, Mr. Joe Palmer, Mr. Robert Lovett, Mr. Jimmy Matthews and many others have influenced and helped me be able to accomplish the things I have done. They have set strong examples of what a water professional should be and they have been liberal with their time to answer questions and assist others who are trying to become the next generation of water professionals. I count my membership in the Georgia Rural Water Association as one of my most valuable assets. It provides a great opportunity to exchange information with others in the water works profession. Whatever the challenge before us at the moment, there is usually someone else that has faced a similar and can give us ways to proceed. To avoid headaches, wasted money.

Treated effluent decants to an equalization basin and from there goes through UV disinfection and into Cold Creek.

After decant, biosolids are pumped to an aerobic digester, and then there to a drying bed (F.D. DeLoach Company, Inc.). "It's the only drying bed of its kind in Georgia," says Lovett. "Instead of sand, it uses crushed limestone on top. With sand, the material takes a month to dry. With this system, in any weather, it dries in five or six weeks. After that, we rake it up and take it to the landfill." Water from drying beds underdrain is piped back to the headworks.

Plant influent averages 180 mg/l BOD and 140 mg/l TSS. The permit calls for 17 mg/l BOD and 30 mg/l for the rest of the year. Actual effluent BOD and TSS are 5 mg/l. "It looks like drinking water," Lovett says. "Ammonia is below detection limit. Our pH limit is 9, and that runs about 7.2. Total dissolved oxygen limit DO limit is 2 parts per million, and that runs above seven. We've never failed on our permit."

Lovett made his own contribution to the plant's design, calling for the installation of DO probes in a feedback loop to optimize blower operation on SBRs and save energy. "I read that in a magazine at the time of building the system," he says.

"Most plants run the blowers on a timed basis to keep the DO level low. We control the blowers with DO probes. We keep the DO in the range from 1.2 to 2.5 parts per million. The blowers come on at 1.2 and come off at 2.5. We spent about $11,000 on the system with a change order, but it's well worth the money."

The SBR process is fully automated and a SCADA system enables Lovett to monitor the operation from Wood

DIGGER DOG DIGGING TAYLORSVILLE ELEMENTARY

SPECIAL
On Oct. 1, Georgia 811's mascot, Digger Dog, visited Taylorsville Elementary School, encouraging students in second grade to "know what's below and call before they dig." Sharing safety information and having a bit of fun, Digger explained the importance of not damaging underground utility lines by digging safely, how to be safe near overhead power lines and what to do if the power lines are down. He also demonstrated the smell of natural gas and what students should do if they smell it. Digger also discussed what the little colored flag and paint on the ground represents and that students should never move the flags. City's natural gas dept. wants public to be educated on proper safety procedures

The City of Eatonton Natural Gas department in keeping in compliance with the U.S. Department of Transportation Pipeline Safety Regulations has established a continuing educational program to enable customers, the public, appropriate government organizations, and persons engaged in excavation related activities to recognize a gas pipeline emergency for the purpose of reporting it to the Natural Gas Department.

The Natural Gas Department has a "Damage Prevention Program," which means it is a member of the Georgia One Call System.

The purpose of this program is to enhance the safety of the natural gas system operation by providing a means for locating natural gas pipelines for the public and contractors working in the area of planned underground excavation when such activity could reasonably be expected to result in damage.

"Excavation activities" for the purpose of this damage-prevention program shall be defined as: activities that include excavation, blasting, boring, tunneling, backfilling, taking core samples, drilling, the removal of above ground destruction which penetrate the earth by either explosive or mechanical means and other earth-moving operations.

"Earth-moving operations" include all operations using power-driven machinery and all operations using hand tools such as post-hole diggers, shovels, etc. which could easily damage gas lines.

All contractors and others normally engaged in excavation activities in the natural gas system service area must call the Georgia One Call System, which is known as the Utilities Protection Center (UPC) before an excavation is performed.

Line-location requests will be received by the UPC at the following number: 1-800-282-7411. UPC hours are from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

also will be in attendance to explain more about their requirements and expectations and will be available to answer questions. The event is open to students grades eight through 12.

Due to Dobbins' security restrictions, all attendees must make reservations and must present photo identification, vehicle registration and proof of auto insurance tacting Nancy Brooks, Isakson's academy director, at 770-661-0999 or by registering online at www.isakson.senate.gov.

All individuals who wish to attend must provide their phone number, date of birth, driver's license number and total number of guests who will be in the car by the registration deadline at 5 p.m. Friday, April 30.

April is Safe Digging Month in Georgia

DULUTH - There is no reason to make foolish assumptions about the location of underground utilities. April is Dig Safely Month in Georgia, as declared by Gov. Sonny Perdue. Georgia 811, along with Perdue, encourage you to "Call 811 Before You Dig."

In April of 2009, Georgia 811 took 83,650 requests to have utility lines located. For each request, an average of eight member companies were notified that digging would be taking place in their service area.

"Calling before you dig is an important step in safe digging. It not only saves lives, but money and time. If you have dug in the past without calling, don't make that mistake again. Call 811 on every project, every time. The call is free and having the underground utilities marked is free," said Georgia 811 President/CEO Claudette Campbell.

A free call to 811 begins the process of getting underground utility lines marked. Georgia 811 notifies member utility companies where and when you plan to dig. These member companies dispatch technicians to mark the underground utilities with colored paint and/or flags.

By respecting the location of these marks and flags you can avoid contact with underground utilities.

Notify Georgia 811 at least 48 hours before excavation begins.

Important safety information from Atlanta Gas Light

Every day, underground pipelines safely transport natural gas to homes and businesses throughout the area. Atlanta Gas Light is responsible for the security and maintenance of pipelines in our service territory.

Call Before You Dig

Before digging around your property, state law requires you call 8-1-1 to have your utility lines professionally marked – for free! Call at least 48 hours before you begin your project.

Know what's below. Call before you dig.

Pipeline markers indicate the presence of pipe and right-of-way. While they're not present in all areas, it's always best to call 8-1-1. If right-of-way is adjacent to your property, it is your responsibility to ensure no new landscaping or physical structure interferes with access to the pipeline, and with our ability to keep it safe through routine monitoring and maintenance. Information about transmission pipelines operating in your community is available through the National Pipeline Mapping System (NPMS) and is available online at www.npms.phmsa.dot.gov.

Water Heater Safety

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) urges all users to lower their water heaters to 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Carbon Monoxide

Incomplete combustion of any fuel – produces carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide is poisonous and has no odor, taste or color. Carbon monoxide detectors are helpful, but they are no substitute for using equipment safely. This includes having it inspected once a year by a certified contractor.

Appliance Safety

According to the Federal Emergency Management Agency:

- It's important that you have your furnace inspected by a qualified specialist.
- Be sure all furnace controls and emergency shutoffs are in proper working condition.
- Keep trash and other combustible material away from your air heating and water heating systems.

IF YOU SMELL GAS, ACT

Although natural gas pipeline incidents are uncommon, these tips will help you identify a possible leak and know what to do.

LOOK for blowing dirt or continued bubbling of standing water.

LISTEN for a hissing or roaring sound near a natural gas appliance or line.

SMELL for the distinctive rotten-egg smell of natural gas. Take action if you detect even a small amount of this odor.

LEAVE the area IMMEDIATELY if you suspect a natural gas leak. Don't try to identify or stop the leak.

CALL Atlanta Gas Light at 1-877-444-4444 or 911 once you are safely away from the possible leak site. Stay away from the area until a Atlanta Gas Light representative or emergency personnel indicate it is safe to return.

REMEMBER while near a possible natural gas leak, do not touch or use anything that may cause a spark. This includes light switches, matches, cigarettes, flashlights, light bulbs, and telephones. Wait until you have a safe area to use a cell phone.

Everyone knows you call 9-1-1 to report an emergency. Do you know who to call to prevent one? 8-1-1. Hey, even if you're just planting trees or shrubs, you need to know where your underground power lines are. If you don't, you put yourself at risk, and you risk taking out the whole neighborhood.

Georgia 811 Lineman of the Week

Russell Voted Georgia 811 Lineman of the Week After Wofford Game

Release: 10/15/2010

STATESBORO, Ga. -- For the fourth time in five weeks, Eagle defensive star and sophomore nose tackle Brent Russell (Comer, Ga.) was named Georgia 811 "Lineman of the Week."

Russell earned over half of the votes from Eagle fans at 54 percent of the vote. His performance came in the tough loss to the 21st-ranked Wofford Terriers. Russell recorded three tackles, one and a half tackles for loss and a quarterback hurry. The voting ended with Russell edging out offensive lineman Ryan Byrne who finished with 38.8 percent of the vote.

Fans can vote every week for their favorite Georgia 811 "Lineman of the Week" GeorgiaSouthernEagles.com following every Georgia Southern Football game.

January 2010

President's Corner

Greetings from your Board! Here's wishing each Haynes Landing member a very happy new year! Hope that 2010 brings you and your families many joys and success. Your Board is excited about fulfilling our responsibilities in an equitable and consistent manner and also maintaining the quality of life that we all enjoy in Haynes Landing.

As we begin this new year, I'd like to remind you of a few things. These are listed below in an easy to read format:

1. This is the last printed issue of the Landing Strip. Effective February 1, the newsletter will be available online at Haynes Landing.com.
2. Our website goes live February 1. All reservations, communications, events, advertisements, and addresses of neighbors will only be available through the website. I encourage you to log on to the website and "surf" the site and you will be pleasantly surprised at how easy it is to navigate. If you have any comments about improving the website, feel free to email them to me or any Board member and we can pass them on to

DIG

One free, easy call gets your utility lines marked AND helps protect you from injury and expense. Know what's below. Always call 811 before you dig.

Visit call811.com for more information.

Q: What is 811?

A: 811 is a new federally-mandated N-11 number designated by the FCC to consolidate all local "Call Before You Dig" numbers and help save lives by minimizing damages to underground utilities. One easy phone call to 811 quickly and easily begins the process of getting underground utility lines marked. Local One Call Center personnel will then notify affected utility companies, who will continue to mark underground lines for free.

Q: Why should I call 811 before every dig?

A: Calling 811 will help save lives and protect infrastructure. Knowing where underground utility lines are buried before each digging project begins, helps protect you from injury, expense and penalties. The depth of utility lines varies and there may be multiple utility lines in simple digging projects can disrupt vital services to harm diggers, and potential fines

Pipeline Safety Brochure

Call before you dig, IT'S FREE, AND IT'S THE LAW!

Because even relatively minor excavation activities like landscaping or fencing can cause damage to a pipeline, its protective casing and/or buried utility lines, always contact your state One-Call Center before engaging in any excavation, construction, farming or digging. Most states require 48 hours notice to the One-Call Center to allow the utility operators to mark their pipelines and utilities at your proposed digging site. In fact, most serious damage done to pipelines is done when a third party inadvertently excavates, blasts or drills within a pipeline right-of-way. By contacting the One-Call Center first, this type of damage can be prevented. Sometimes pipeline companies will require a representative present to monitor the safe excavation.

811 is a federally-mandated number designated by the FCC to consolidate local "Call Before You Dig" numbers and help save lives by minimizing damages to underground utilities. One easy phone call to 811 starts the process to get your underground pipelines and utility lines marked for your project. When you call 811 from anywhere in the country, your call will be routed to your state One-Call Center. Once your underground lines have been marked for your project, you will know the approximate location of your pipelines and utility lines, and can continue your project by digging with care and respecting the marks. More information regarding 811 can be found at www.call811.com.
