

3400 Summit Ridge Parkway
Duluth, Georgia 30096
Tel: 770.623.4332
Fax: 770.623.1847

August 31, 2005

«Title»
«School»
«Address»
«City», «State» «Postal_Code»

Dear Elementary School Principal:

Don't let the 2005-2006 school year slip away without scheduling the Utilities Protection Center of Georgia's Digger Dog Safety Education Program for your fourth-grade students. Thousands of students across Georgia have learned important lessons about utility safety from the Utilities Protection Center of Georgia's mascot/costumed character Digger Dog.

Digger Dog conducts a captivating 30-minute hands-on presentation designed to teach your students about critical information regarding utility line safety; why we stay away from exposed utility lines, transformers and overhead power lines; why it's important to call the Utilities Protection Center before you dig; and why colorful utility yard flags are important. This award-winning safety education program was written and coordinated by Gwinnett County elementary school teachers, and is an excellent supplement to the lessons in electricity outlined in the Georgia Quality Core Curriculum.

In addition, we provide each student with a take-home activity book to reinforce Digger's key safety messages and a Digger Dog beanie animal, stickers, crayons, rulers, magnets and a Digger Dog Utility Safety certificate.

Digger Dog would welcome the opportunity to meet with your fourth-grade students during the 2005-2006 school year. This no-cost, informative, fun presentation will offer further opportunities for learning and offers a nice addition to the fourth-grade core curriculum. Please call Eren Chapel, Liaison Manager at 678-377-7751 to coordinate a Digger Dog appearance at your school. The schedule is filling up quickly, so we strongly encourage you to call soon.

Thank you for your consideration.
Sincerely,

Claudette A. Campbell

Claudette Campbell
Executive Director
Utilities Protection Center of Georgia